Adversary Archetype

Basic

It is a pro-life organization that is organized into groups to monitor and attack anyone who promotes abortion as women who defend sexual and reproductive rights.

Technical Capabilities

They have not been formally trained, nor do they have hardware or software infrastructure. But they do self-educate themselves on the Internet, to achieve their goals.

Targets

Feminist groups, women's groups that promote sexual and reproductive rights, assist women and girls in abortions, provide information on contraceptive methods and accompany women in cases of physical violence.

Favored Means of Attack

Discredit in social networks.
Denouncing content in networks.
Creation of false profiles to attack people's integrity.
Emotional attacks with campaigns promoting pro-life messages.

Motivation

The motivation is cultural and social. These groups consider that feminist organizations are promoting criminal practices; they consider that even if rape has occurred to a girl and she is pregnant, an abortion cannot be allowed; they are also against sexual education, as they consider that it promotes promiscuity.

Resources

They are groups that have human resources. Sometimes they have the support of the State, which allows legal actions against women's organizations.

Intent

Attempts to stop any information or action taken by women's organizations. They promote attacks against these organizations and try to discredit them.

Constraints & Limitations

It is known that they use private infrastructure, so it is possible to file complaints on their websites.
What has worked is social activism, through marches; in addition, campaigns in social networks, union of several organizations.
